

ACAD OPENS NEW TRAINING CENTRE

ACAD (Asbestos Control & Abatement Division) has recently completed the build of a fantastic new training centre in Darlington, County Durham. Fully equipped with brand new computers, projectors and other essential training facilities, the centre will be used to deliver the company's asbestos awareness and removal training programmes. Thanks to the new Training Centre, ACAD can now offer training to the industry for all relevant courses including: New Operative, New Supervisor, Asbestos Awareness and Refreshers.

Representatives from ACAD will be on hand at Health and Safety 09 – North in October to talk about the company's training programmes. Visitors to the ACAD stand (Stand 146) will also have the opportunity to view a selection of publications including newsletters and the company's ACADemy magazine which demonstrate the importance of Asbestos Awareness and what an organisation can do to prevent any effects of the UK's biggest industry killer.

ACAD is also offering visitors to its stand the chance to win Marks and Spencer vouchers via a business card draw, and all visitors will receive a free ACAD goody bag upon arrival stocked with useful information about asbestos as well as ACAD gifts.
