

E-Learning for Quality Savings

Safety Media will be showing how e-learning can offer significant savings on training costs without compromising the quality of training at Health and Safety 09 this month. Well known for its library of more than 40 video and interactive courses, Safety Media will be presenting an e-learning system which offers training in 30 languages, interactive handsets for group learning, self-paced interactive courses, high quality video and offline laptop training for use at sites without internet access.

The company will also be showing its substantial library of SCORM compliant health and safety training which ranges from highly interactive Flash based courses to its acclaimed video based material. Its SCORM compliant products include 17 interactive and 23 video courses with more being added all the time. Safety Media can supply branded training to match an existing learning management system or corporate image, and can convert training material into PowerPoint format or bring old courses up to SCORM compliancy.

Safety Media will be exhibiting on stand 21, and further information is available on www.safetylearning.co.uk or www.scorm.org.uk .
